VOL. 3, NO. 4 FALL/WINTER 2008

SOMETIMES TO GO FORWARD, YOU HAVE TO LOOK BACK

Meeting needs since 1941

As Des Moines emerged from the Great Depression, east side businessman George O'Dea saw there was a need for a different kind of bank: one that was locally-based, community minded and responsive to the needs of working people. So George O'Dea went to work and on April 16, 1941, with five employees and one office, Iowa State Bank opened its doors.

As a local financial institution, it was the mission of Iowa State Bank to offer the people of Des Moines improved savings opportunities, fair loan services and a strong, stable place for their deposits.

It was just what customers were looking for, and Iowa State Bank thrived. We were the first bank in Des Moines to install drive up window service and to issue certificates of deposit. Now, we're one of the few banks that continue to offer the Passbook Savings account.

Meeting the needs of tomorrow

Today with 75 employees and five convenient locations, Iowa State Bank continues George O'Dea's vision by offering personal service and a secure place to deposit your money.

In these times of uncertainty, we want you to know Iowa State Bank remains an independently owned and operated bank with committed ties to the community. You'll never have to worry about Iowa State Bank being sold to a large banking corporation. Rest assured, your money and your banking relationship is safe at Iowa State Bank.

Our continuing success is due to our many loyal customers, individuals and businesses. It's been an honor to serve you and we're committed to offering you safe and sound banking for generations to come.

"Today, Iowa State Bank continues to have reserves and resources in place to handle economic shifts, and provides a financially safe and sound institution for our customers."

PITCHING IN FOR HABITAT FOR HUMANITY

During the second week of April, volunteers from banks across Iowa participated in the Home by the Dome event to build a Habitat for Humanity home near the Iowa Capitol building.

Saturday, April 12th was Iowa State Bank's work day, and while it was cold and two inches of snow fell, it only made our crew more determined to help. Throughout the day our team painted, installed appliances, finished trim, sanded and repaired drywall, and built a shed.

Once finished, the new home was moved to its permanent location where its owners and their three daughters now happily reside.

HELP KIDS STAY WARM THIS WINTER

The sixth annual Shoes That Fit drive is now underway and Iowa State Bank is a proud sponsor of the event.

The charity provides new shoes, coats and other essential clothing to children from local Des Moines schools.

Ryan Bomer, Iowa State Bank loan officer and our Shoes That Fit coordinator, says that last year nearly 7,000 local children were served by the program. "This year, the need is greater than ever," Ryan states. Join us in meeting the growing needs of children in our community.

To participate in the drive, pick up a donation slip at any Iowa State Bank location. Purchase the item and bring it back. The collection continues through December 5th.
